

EXAMPLE ON HOW TO STRUCTURE A TRAINING PORTAL

In this example we look at EBA, the Education Information Network, is a portal that has been used by the Ministry of National Education since 2012 to facilitate educational activities through digital media.

EBA aims to continuously produce knowledge by restructuring information. EBA, which can appeal to a large number of students with different teaching methods (verbal, numerical, visual arts...), is also a common platform for teachers to produce content and interact. In this way, educational content produced by teachers can be shared with students. The Education Informatics Network, which offers a social lesson environment with active participation, also allows teachers to accompany students regularly.

Students can follow the content and assignments transferred to the platform by teachers on their personal calendars. EBA, which offers students the opportunity to collaborate with their classmates, allows students to benefit from any lesson and any subject instantly with its instant internet connection. EBA, which also serves outside of school, helps many students to increase their success in lessons.

EBA offers many educational features. The content is organized under the relevant category, providing easy access. While general content can be accessed by all users, some categories such as courses can be accessed with a username and password.

EBA content section contains information resources such as videos, visual and audio materials, e-books, etc. The application section offers applications such as art, entertainment and education for teachers and students. In addition, in the file section, it offers 10gb data storage space for teachers and 1gb data storage space for students, allowing work to be stored.

The frequently asked questions section atempts to answer the students' queries.

By directing students and teachers who do not have sufficient equipment to use the portal to EBA Support Points, education is spread to all layers of society.
